

The diagram illustrates the layout of a book spread. A vertical dashed line in the center represents the binding. Two large rectangular areas on either side represent the pages. A thin green border outlines the outer edges of the pages. On the right page, three horizontal lines are shown: a thick green line at the top, a thick black line in the middle, and a thick green line at the bottom. These lines correspond to the labels 'wewnętrzny margines', 'linia cięcia', and 'linia spadu' respectively.
